

“Serene Summer 2009”

All the initiatives, devoted to old and disabled people that stay in town

During summertime, when towns empty and climatic conditions create more discomforts, the need the most frail citizens have of not being left alone resurfaces with more evidence.

In fact, summertime is a hard period for lots of old people, not only for hot.

When children and grandchildren go on holiday and quarters are empty, in fact, there are almost all over 65 old people staying in hot towns, because often they can't go on holiday either for economic reasons or health. Free time could become an empty time, that could favour, in some people categories, a gradual process of isolation but above all there is the risk of social exclusion. This happens to people who live in seclusion, not for their choice, but for their social, economic and cultural condition. So, also this year, the Social Politics Assessorship, in collaboration with organizations, public and private bodies, sets a dense program of animation and citizen tourism activities in order to fight solitude and isolation.

All the initiatives, devoted to old and disabled people that stay in town, are free and have been projected in order to favour the rediscovery of the town and the surroundings but also to create meeting and aggregation opportunities. In addition to the animation programme, “Serene Summer” also aims to support old people in overcoming the little but hard commissions of everyday, through the actions of the Summer Ponies volunteers that will offer help and also thanks to TIM sponsorship, help at home and assistance.

Also for Summer 2009, so, a top priority objective of the municipal administration is to answer to the needs of older, disabled people and of all Neapolitan citizens that live uncomfortably.
